Conflict of Interest Reporting Form

A separate form is required for each contributing author.

All interests financial or otherwise which could be considered to present a potential bias in the review presented or the conclusions and opinions therein expressed must be reported. This includes, but is not limited to, funding, affiliations, holdings, patents and commercial interests for individual authors as well as their associated organizations that could be reasonably seen to affect the objectivity of and present a bias to the review. If you are in doubt as to whether or not an interest presents a conflict, it is better to report it.

If there are no conflicts of interests that present a bias to the work, this must be declared.

A summary of the reported conflicts of interest will be published along with the review.
